Christy's "A" Team

Lazarex Cancer Foundation

I was diagnosed with an advanced stage aggressive breast cancer on the afternoon of my 43rd birthday. After many doctors' appointments for opinions on treatment and prognosis, and appointment after appointment, I was given the same prognosis: Poor. I was not certain which class party for my 3 and 5 year old boys would be my last but it appeared to be imminent.

I built my "A" team of physicians and started a local clinical trial for my chemotherapy. After two years of chemotherapy, surgery and five weeks of radiation, I felt like I could start to breathe again. While trying to comprehend the language of the trial, the logistics of frequently getting to an institution a few states away, and the overwhelming thoughts of how we were possibly going to be able to afford it, I found Lazarex Cancer Foundation.

With the never ending support of my employer, United Airlines, and with the assistance from Lazarex, I successfully completed the two year breast cancer vaccine clinical trial. The trial I participated in has been so promising it has since moved onto Phase II. We had 21 participants in our Phase I portion and we all had the same type of aggressive high recurrent-risk breast cancer. We are all currently disease free! What a blessing.
